SILK GALLERY DEBUTS INDIVIDUAL EXHIBITION BY BERNARDO HENNING, TITLED “CONTROL”

The exhibit features 20 artworks that reflect on the order and chaos of creating art

MADRID, SPAIN–March 2, 2023–Known for their contemporary, boundary-pushing graphic art, Silk Gallery announces their upcoming exhibition by Argentinian artist Bernardo Henning, titled “Control.” The solo exhibit will feature 20 works of art that encompass the gallery’s creative philosophy, as the artist reflects on the frontiers of design, illustration and contemporary art in our modern world. Henning’s “Control” will be available for viewing in-person between March 2 and May 10 or virtually on the Silk Gallery website.

Recognized for his colorful, psychedelic collages in the digital universe and graphic work with Adobe, Dior, Estée Lauder, Coca-Cola and Spotify, “Control” aims to build discussion around the definitions between art and design that tend to limit an artist’s creative process. “In this collection, I set out to maintain control and lose control, order the disorder or mess up the order. But ultimately, play,” says Henning.

Appreciating the order and chaos of producing art, Henning demonstrates the uncertainties of the creative process by leading the exhibition with a large hand-painted canvas with the phrase, “The worst thing that happened to me as an artist is being a designer.” The traditional canvas as a starting point represents his perspective on the unpredictable routes that are restricted by the functionalism of his training as a Graphic Designer.

“The vices for order and general guidelines of the profession, turned something that should be potentially expressive into something ordered, calculated and designed to work,” adds Henning.

Throughout the exhibit, Henning’s figures move between artistic and commercial projects in a powerful, graphic universe, aiming to dilute the rigid, and sometimes exclusive, interpretations of how Art and Design should be. Evaluating intervention, seriality and a traditionally low-value format of graphic arts, the Argentinian artist will also give visitors the opportunity to join the debate and finish the sentence with their own experience with an immersive installation of 4,000 that they can take home with them.

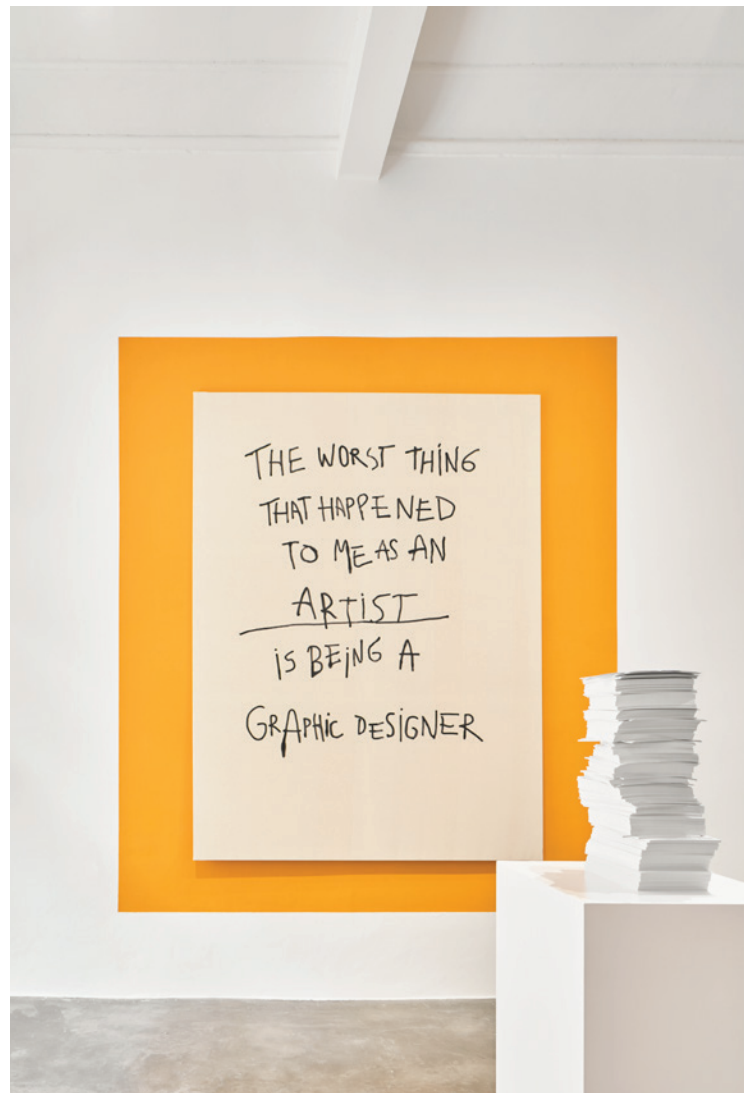

“Behind the powerful abstract compositions of Bernardo Henning’s work, we find a profound reflection on existing as an artist,” says Andrea Devia-Nuño, Director and Curator at Silk. “His questions about how the art and design industries surprisingly fail to co-exist are a crystallization of how many creatives feel on this point, and the fact that he takes this controversy literally into his own work opens the door for the conversation we want, and in which the gallery is based on.”

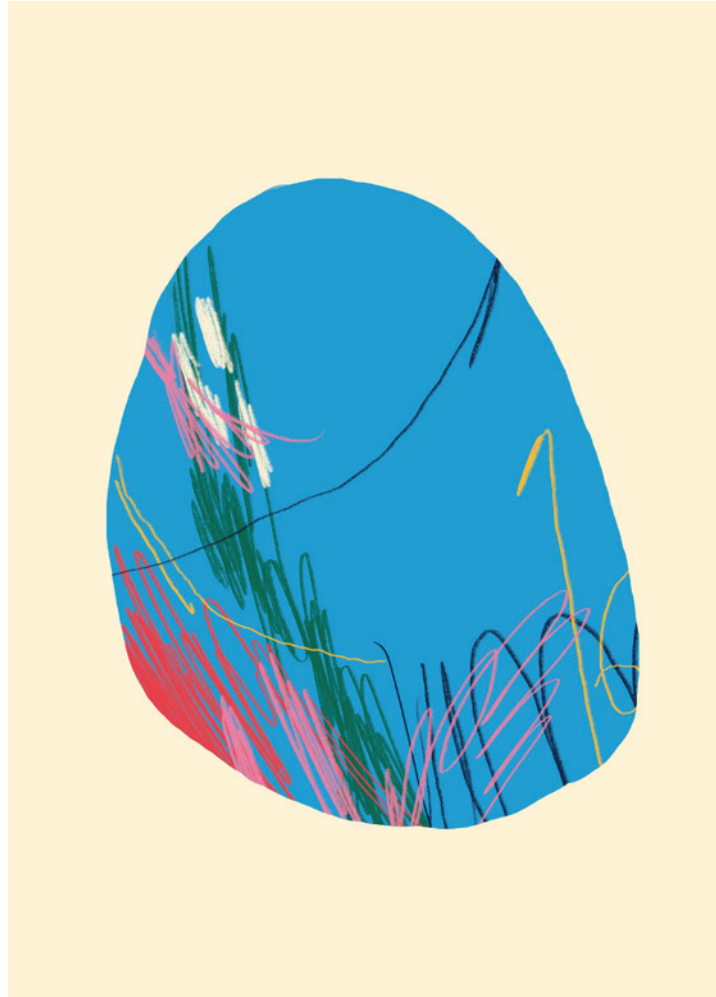

Bernardo Henning’s artwork will be available for purchase in Silk’s online store on the exhibition’s opening day, March 2.

Located in the heart of Madrid, and powered by production company Final Frontier, Silk Gallery’s mission is to celebrate digital work born outside of traditional institutions. The gallery has been hosting exhibitions since late 2020, showcasing artists like Sebastian Curi, Yukai Du and Santiago Oddis.

ABOUT SILK GALLERY

Located in Madrid, Spain, Silk Gallery is a project by production company Final Frontier, with a mission to celebrate design, illustration and contemporary art, by bringing together boundary-pushing digital artists, predominantly from the commercial world, and presenting their work in a physical environment. Through Silk Gallery, artists are given a rare offline opportunity to showcase personal and experimental projects that allow them free and unbridled expression beyond the constraints of commercial work.

Through close dialogue between the artists and the curators, Silk Gallery has produced special and exclusive artworks for each exhibition, building in the process an extensive catalog of serigraphs, giclée, original paintings, and sculptures. The Silk store offers many of these exclusive and featured artworks, all in a strictly limited run.
